VI. COMMENTARY

This month many schools are starting back in either a hybrid schedule or fully online. Much of my time has been spent assisting teachers as they prepare for a very different looking fall. I have had the chance to assist many of the first year teachers getting their classroom set up, but have also been able to work with many experienced teachers on some of the virtual platforms that they will need to use with remote learning. Elite Planning has also started and we are very excited to see it come together in this new virtual platform.
